

It's Showtime Updates the K-1 Situation

Written by Dave Walsh
Monday, 30 May 2011 09:16 -

---

You'll remember last week It's Showtime sent out an announcement that they would be possibly taking legal action against K-1 for a total of $400,000+ that is owed to It's Showtime fighters. This all came after It's Showtime announced It's Showtime Japan would begin gearing up over the summer and K-1 is finally running their first show. Tanikawa made it clear he was unhappy and wished to block any fighters from fighting for It's Showtime if they wanted to fight for K-1 again.

Well, Rutz has released a new statement this morning.

Following the press release from Mr. Tanikawa, I would like to make the following statement:

It is true that I had a telephone conversation with Mr. Tanikawa in which he has taken some of my worries. However, there's still the fact that we have 400.000 US Dollars in direct demandable deposits at K-1 and

Mr. Tanikawa asked us if we want to delay our juridical actions with another week because he will make

I would like to emphasize that I would sincerely regret it if Mr. Tanikawa can't find a way to help K-1 to re

Simon Rutz
IT'S SHOWTIME

It is good to see that some common ground has been met, but we aren't out of the woods yet.

It's Showtime Updates the K-1 Situation

Written by Dave Walsh

Monday, 30 May 2011 09:16 -

---